St. Joseph Mental Health Services is proud to feature Dr. Dave Robinson, Ph.D., as the keynote speaker for our 2016 Rural Mental Health Symposium. Dr. Robinson is a licensed marriage and family therapist with expertise in medical family therapy and collaborative healthcare. As a behavioral health faculty member at the University of Nebraska Medical Center for 14 years, Dr. Robinson trained medical students, family practice residents, and marriage and family therapy students in a collaborative model of care. He was also heavily involved in a variety of rural mental health care grants while at the University of Nebraska Medical Center. Dr. Robinson is currently the Program Director for the Marriage and Family Therapy Program at Utah State University and also is the Director of Behavioral Medicine at the Cache Valley Community Health Centers.

COLLABORATION & PSYCHOPHARMACOLOGY: Exploring How to Improve Our Clients’ Lives Through More Effective Interdisciplinary Treatment of Mental Health Concerns

Friday, October 7, 2016 • 8:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.

With constant changes in healthcare and the common split between the mind and body, collaborative healthcare is needed. Dr. Robinson will address key strategies to mend this conceptual split. One key aspect that will be addressed is making sure that mental health professionals are adequately trained in psychopharmacology to ensure effective collaboration with prescribers.
